

Steven Lee (lee@hws.edu) teaches philosophy at Hobart and William Smith Colleges in Geneva, New York. He writes on issues in social, moral, and political philosophy, especially on morality and war. He also teaches in these areas, including a course in morality and war and courses in social justice. He is the author of Morality, Prudence, and Nuclear Weapons (Cambridge, 1993) and the forthcoming Ethics in War (Cambridge, 2011), and editor of Intervention, Terrorism, and Torture: Contemporary Challenges to Just War Theory (Springer, 2007), and co-editor of Ethics and Weapons of Mass Destruction (2004).